

Janice Perry
Sex! Gender! Race!

This workshop is an invitation to consider ways in which sexuality, gender, race, and body are performed and interpreted.

What is "identity"? Who and what defines your identity for you? How do you define your own racial, social, sexual, cultural, national, gendered, embodied "self" ? How do you read "others?" Who is your audience and for whom are you the audience?

Create and develop individual and collaborative performance work. Cross disciplines and use multi-media to support text, theory, performance and visual art.

Curious but hesitant?

We'll work in a collaborative atmosphere that encourages and supports risk-taking, For visual and performance artists, philosophers, sociologists, mathematicians and others. Bring cameras, laptops, ipods, cellphones, pencils, paper and/or other media.
